TERROIR

Our high-density vineyards are planted on silty-clay limestone-laced soils with some sand. The proportions of these elements vary enormously from plot to plot – and the resulting wines have structure, complexity, finesse and minerality – AND a ‘sense of place.’ Each vineyard is cared for by

TASTING NOTES

A bright straw colour with a peach stone nose with hints of citrus, pear and minted honey. Dry and long in the mouth, this sleek Chardonnay has a chalky mineral component and bright balanced acidity on the finish.

VINIFICATION AND AGING

After a short cold maceration, the naturally-occurring indigenous yeast from the vineyard, make the most complete, textured, complex wines. After the fermentation, when the wine is dry, we leave the young wine On the skins’ for several days/weeks more to fully delicately extract all the aromas,
